What is Open Access?

“By “open access” to [peer-reviewed research literature], we mean its free availability on the public internet, permitting any users to read, download, copy, distribute, print, search, or link to the full texts of these articles, crawl them for indexing, pass them as data to software, or use them for any other lawful purpose, without financial, legal, or technical barriers other than those inseparable from gaining access to the internet itself.”

(Budapest Open Access Initiative, <https://www.budapestopenaccessinitiative.org/boai-10-recommendations>)

Overview: the three most common Open Access colours

Making your publications more visible: self-archiving (green OA)

Various options:

- subject repositories
- academic networks (e.g. ResearchGate)
- institutional repositories
- own website

Important:

- check your rights (or have them checked) – e.g. via SherpaRomeo:
<https://v2.sherpa.ac.uk/romeo/>
- avoid signing away your rights to commercial platforms
- suggestion: instead, upload full text onto non-commercial platform, then link to it

Self-archiving service: enriching publication lists with full text

1. Interested in our self-archiving service? Email openaccess@bibliothek.uni-augsburg.de
2. Library checks self-archiving rights
3. Results are sent to author
4. Author signs „Zustimmungserklärung“ (permission to upload full texts)
5. Full text files are made available via OPUS for publications chosen by author
6. If rights are unclear, library contacts publishers for permission

Open Access Myth? Busted!

„Open Access takes too much time and is too complicated – which licences, repositories, rights...“

Open Access teams in your institutions provide lots of support!

We offer training and help with rights checks.

Often engaging with Open Access at submission and acceptance is sufficient.
