

Tax Strategy & Transfer Pricing Intern (m/f/d)

The Pacifico Renewables Yield Group is a young and dynamic – yet publicly listed – independent power producer investing in Renewable Energy assets. We are passionate about accelerating the energy transition and pursue the goal of building a large portfolio of renewable energy power plants in order to become a leading publicly listed market player in Europe. With our 166 MW portfolio of onshore wind parks and solar farms across Europe, we operate a diversified profile with stable and predictable cash flows and have a sizeable pipeline of deals ahead of us.

Following our successful listing in November 2019, we have already secured an almost threefold increase of our portfolio since then. Besides growing our portfolio, we have also been able to attract outstanding talent and build a passionate team. There is more to come, and we invite you to be part of it!

Our team is currently looking for a Tax Strategy & Transfer Pricing Intern for two to six months.

In your role as a Tax Strategy & Transfer Pricing Intern, you will:

- Improve the intercompany transfer principles and documentation
- Review the Group's current tax set-up and strategize further growth from a tax perspective
- Support in the implementation of cost planning and determination of cost allocations
- Monitor intercompany cost allocations and ensure the correct application of transfer pricing methods and transfer pricing guidelines
- Further develop the Group's transfer pricing documentation (local file) in accordance with internationally applicable guidelines
- Prepare and maintain intercompany contracts for the allocation of services
- Identify and manage tax risks in an international context and improve the international tax guidelines of the Group as well as implement them in standardized processes
- Coordinate with various departments, international partners, external consultants and tax authorities
- Critically challenge all activities to continuously leverage the Group's activities
- Take responsibility from day one and run your own projects from initial research to implementation
- Work directly with the Management Board on this strategic priority

As an employer, we offer:

- A passionate and collaborative start-up atmosphere combined with highest professional standards
- A work environment that fosters entrepreneurial and creative thinking and the drive for excellence
- Interdisciplinary challenges and a high degree of responsibility and independence providing the ability for rapid professional and personal development
- Flat hierarchies in a fast-paced work environment alongside colleagues with background from Tier 1 investment banks and consulting firms
- A Munich-based modern office with flexibility to work from home

As a potential candidate, you have:

- Significant work experience in the area of transfer pricing and tax
- An impeccable academic track record in the area of business administration, tax, accounting, finance, management or similar
- Advanced knowledge of transfer pricing and international tax guidelines
- A high degree of self-initiative and the ability to clearly articulate results and insights
- A highly structured way of working and strong skills in Excel, Word & PowerPoint
- Great passion and curiosity for accelerating the energy transition
- Motivation to have a lasting impact and an entrepreneurial and performance-driven mindset
- Excellent verbal and written communication skills in English and German

Apply here: hr@pacifico-renewables.com