

Seltmann, Sabrina: The invisible walls. An ethnographic study of Harvard Business School as a transformative organisation.

Based on an ethnographically informed field study, this thesis reconstructs Harvard Business School as an authoritative transformative organisation and thereby develops a sociological concept of organisation that enables the functioning of prestigious elite organisations to be described beyond the classical models of Goffman and Scott.